

The death of a parent or other important person in a child's life is one of the most disruptive childhood experiences and can also lead to profound day-to-day stress on the entire family.

FY20 ANNUAL REPORT

With the generous support of our donors, Runway for Recovery is redefining the breast cancer experience for families through family funding, events and programs that strive to provide normalcy amidst the unimaginable. With your funding we supported and served nearly 400 individuals in Massachusetts this year. Models and funded families represent every socio-demographic, race, ethnicity, age, and region of Massachusetts. Breast cancer affects everyone.

Program Activities and Highlights

This year, Runway for Recovery piloted our direct service mode as well as initiated our Family Grants Program.

We are pleased to share the following highlights:

Model Support Services: This year we supported patients and survivors by building programming and delivering a variety of services to our Runway 'models'. We have already built a network of over 250 alumni models over the years, and this year, we welcomed 100 new models into our community. Support services include pairing young women who have lost mothers to breast cancer with other women who experienced loss. We have many examples of women who have lived on in memory of their mothers and healed through the power of being elevated by other women. We feel that it is our responsibility to match make mentorship relationships so that young girls still are elevated by other women, in the way that a mother would have done

Family Grants Program: With the launch of our Family Grants Program this year, Runway for Recovery is helping to alleviate some of the stress caused by the death of a caretaker to breast cancer by providing grants to families to be used for a variety of needs including: childcare services, support groups, unmet/residual medical bills, extracurricular activities for children, counselling services for the family, among others. Each application began with a social worker assigned to each prospective family, who assisted them with their application and visited their homes for a 360-evaluation. We feel strongly about focusing on the whole health of the family, and that social worker support was a critical element to a family's emotional health and is also a large reason why the organization is different than most. This year to date, we have funded ten families across the state. Grant amounts ranged from $10,000 to nearly $30,000 and went to high-need families in communities including Belmont, Methuen, Everett, Worcester, and Woburn.

Funding and support has a significant impact on the families we serve--whose challenges are often two-fold: They are experiencing the real and lasting financial side effects of a loved one going through breast cancer treatment AND, currently fall into a systemic gap in services after the patient passed away. Recently, we funded a family in great need. A single mother passed away to breast cancer five years ago, and her son and daughter went to live with their grandmother. The daughter, Erica, now a young adult struggling to stay afloat financially enough to stay in college, sought help from Runway for Recovery through our Family Grants Program. We feel strongly about funding families affected by the passing of a caretaker for up to a decade after their death because of the systematic financial challenges that these individuals tend to incur--as a direct result of this event. Erica wrote: "I feel that if I had received funding five years ago, my life would be very different than it is now. I currently try my best to save my money, which results in having to live with less than most people have. It can be extremely stressful to have money on my mind at all times. I am trying my best not to spend every cent I have (even though the amount is extremely limited) because sadly I know my grandmother is not going to live forever and there will come a day that I will need a place to live." Her grandmother, who receives much of her food from Meals on Wheels, has not been getting meals due to the pandemic. We are happy to share that we were able to fund her application in the amount of $20,000, which helped to cover tuition costs, groceries, and financial planning support for Erica.

Another applicant, who lost his wife to breast cancer last December, shared a bit about the financial catch-up he has been playing since his late wife's diagnosis: "Before my wife's passing, due to the distance between our home and Dana Farber, any type of medical visit would take an entire day, at least. Whether it was for imaging, or labs, infusions, or a check-up, we often had to leave home at dawn, only to return after dusk. This resulted in days called out of work for the both of us, and thousands of dollars in lost wages. In addition, there were and are bills for out of pocket medical expenses for various medications, prosthetics, medical supplies, etc."

Runway offers support to families that are tailored to their exact need at that moment--because they are able to apply for funding to support a wide variety of items and services.

Challenges and Lessons Learned

In our pilot year of launching our direct service model we learned many lessons. One of our biggest challenges and opportunities, like most organizations, has been adapting to the current COVID-19 pandemic. Right now, our program and services are proving to be more important than ever. As families who have lost a caretaker to breast cancer across Massachusetts navigate through this unprecedented time, we are hearing consistently how critically important and meaningful access to our Family Grants Program is for our recipients. Runway for Recovery is committed to remaining agile to the new immediate needs of the patients, survivors, and bereaved families that we support. Funding that was initially reserved for children's' extracurricular activities and camps, childcare and wellness workshops is now covering the cost of food, virtual bereavement counseling, and virtual tutoring for children who are not in school, among other items.

Additionally, our social workers have moved into a pattern of weekly touch points with our families. In some cases, our families have been sent home with little to no school work for their children. Our social workers are trying to manage a variety of issues that are coming up -- from simple goal setting, to creative idea building, to online learning options, to virtual tutoring suggestions, and finally, to an increase in any type of family therapy or behavioral therapy for our littlest grantees. We have moved from a semi-annual to a rolling application cycle because of the increased need of so many people who are now making do without a paycheck.

Currently, our family recruitment efforts and outreach to hospitals and hospices continues via email and Zoom video calls; however, medical provider work in this area has slowed significantly due to the critical needs of the COVID-19 patient population and other essential duties they tasked right now. To balance this, we are spending more time working with other nonprofits who have identified families in need (The Ellie Fund, Joe Andruzzi Foundation, Arlington Children's Center, Tanner for Ta-Tas, among others), and have found families to fund through these organizations. We are also finding that more people are more likely to recommend a family directly to us in this uncertain time, and thus we are pushing our outreach and marketing about our Family Grants program on social media and through our monthly emails. Finally, the social worker home visit and 360-evaluation element of our application process has been moved to the Zoom platform in order to move their application through the process as swiftly as possible.

Sustainability

We are committed to the long-term delivery of our program for families affected by breast cancer, a goal that requires both deep and diverse partnerships. In order to ensure program sustainability, we will continue to seek funding from a variety of sources throughout the year, including foundations, corporations as well as individuals. This year, we raised $626,766 to date (as of June 1, 2020) to deliver our program. We secured funding from The Lubrano Family Foundation ($10,000), The Landry Foundation ($50,000), Ilene Beal Foundation ($25,000), The Demoulas Foundation ($5,000), and the New England Patriots Foundation ($5,000), among others.

Looking forward, we will continue to work towards filling a truly unmet need. Many organizations are working towards finding a cure and treatments for breast cancer, and many organizations offer bereavement services. Over the years, Runway's Founder, Olivia, has come to learn how varied, personal, and unique the experience of losing a caretaker can be for a family. In lieu of having to 'shop around' to address unique challenges, Runway offers unique support to families that are tailored to their exact needs at that moment--because they are able to apply for funding to support a wide variety of items and services. Next year, we will continue to build capacity within our team, and expand our reach to serve more families in need. In the second stage of our program pilot, we will evaluate, refine, and replicate our family grants program and model support services.

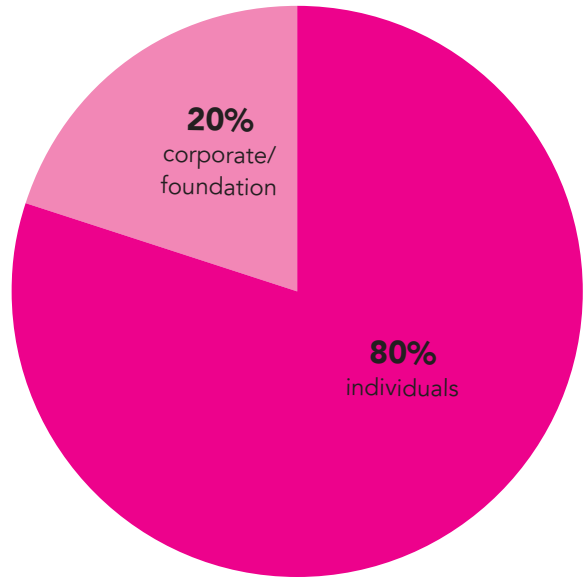

During the time of COVID-19, on top of the loss of their moms, the children and families we serve with our grants program are now facing unemployment of the only parent left and distance learning programs that leave a lot to be desired. Runway is walking the line, daily, of fundraising for these families while also keeping positive feelings alive that so aptly keep us all afloat, and we feel very lucky to have such a keen group of board members and generous donors in our corner. We sincerely appreciate their support during this pivotal year.

" I lost the love of my life, and my best friend. She was diagnosed with breast cancer shortly after the birth of our second child two and half years ago. She had a long and painful road, but she fought every step of the way. In the aftermath of her death, I am trying to keep all the pieces of our life together. Who I am as a man, father, and husband, I owe to my wife's presence in my life, and the beautiful children she gave me. Through Runway for Recovery's Family Grants Program, I am able to honor her memory by allowing our family to utilize funds to heal, grow, and move forward in our lives."
